

Richard Mann [1]

NASA Office of Small Business Programs Manager

Richard Mann joined the NASA HQ Office of Small Business Programs (OSBP) as a Small Business Program Manager in March 2009. Currently, Richard Mann is the Program Manager for Marshall Space Flight Center, Stennis Space Center, the NASA Shared Services Center, and the NASA Management Office for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory. He also has OSBP responsibility for small business prime and subcontracting goaling and metrics (FPDS-NG and eSRS). From 2003-2009, Richard Mann worked in various roles at NASA John C. Stennis Space Center in Mississippi, including Contracting Officer, Procurement Analyst, and Small Business Specialist. He has also been a Contracting Officer for the Defense Logistics Agency/Defense Energy Support Center and for the US Agency for International Development. Richard Mann is a Certified Professional Contracts Manager (CPCM), has a Master of Business Administration with a Concentration in Contracting from the Florida Institute of Technology, and a Bachelor's degree from Louisiana State University.

